Hosted By

Eric Coffin, editor of HRA Advisory, looks for companies with the potential to at least double over one or two years based on asset growth and development of metals deposits for production or take over by larger companies. HRA also uncovers high risk/high potential exploration plays, the kind of "swing for the fences" trade that can yield returns of hundreds or even thousands of percent. Eric and his late brother, David Coffin, were early proponents of the commodity super cycle and correctly called a rapid turn in the markets and positioned readers in early 2009 when most commentators were expecting years of bear markets. This broad experience and hard work helped to generate an average gain of over 183% for nearly 120 companies tracked in the 2003-2016 period, including 31 that were taken over by larger companies. Keith Schaefer is editor and publisher of the Oil and Gas Investments Bulletin. The Bulletin subscription service finds, researches, and profiles growing oil and gas companies that Mr. Schaefer buys himself, so Bulletin subscribers know he has his own money on the line. Mr. Schaefer identifies oil and gas companies that have high growth rates, or have the potential for that – this usually means they have a large undeveloped land position in an area where either production costs are very low or production rates can be very high. They are covered by several research analysts, so there is research support and institutional money flow behind them. oilandgas-investments.com

Tommy Humphreys is the founder and editor of CEO.CA, an influential publication and community dedicated to junior resource investing. CEO.CA features original interviews with junior mining executives, site visit reports, videos, breaking news, commentaries and more.
